

OUR GOAL

The Colony Animal Services strives to protect and nurture The City of The Colony's lost, homeless, abused, injured, and sick pets.

We seek to provide animals the opportunity to be reclaimed, adopted, rehabilitated, or rescued.

It is the mission for the Animal Service Officers and volunteers to pursue a positive synergy and to serve the citizens and pets of The Colony.

ORPHANED OR INJURED WILDLIFE

Wildlife frequently spotted in & around The Colony are bats, bobcat, deer, coyote, skunk, armadillo, rabbits, & snakes. Be aware, that even small mammals may bite, & some may carry diseases.

SQUIRREL

BOBCAT

A wild adult mammal who is not moving away from you is either ill or injured. Do not attempt to rescue large adult mammals by yourself. Do not approach injured deer, coyotes, bobcats, or any other large animal. They will become frightened & will attack. Contact a wildlife rehabilitator or Animal Services immediately.

It is totally normal for wildlife babies to be on their own. The exception is if an animal is injured as the direct result of human activity, such as getting hit by a car, attacked by a pet, striking a window, or falling from a nest during tree work. Or if you have witnessed its parent being killed & know for sure that it is orphaned. Contact a wildlife rehabilitator or Animal Services immediately.

Baby birds, rabbits, & deer are some of the most common wildlife in our yards & neighborhoods. If you encounter one of these wildlife babies who appear to be unharmed but alone, just observe from a distance & keep domestic animals & people away. Chances are quite likely the mother will be back shortly. In many cases, "rescuing" fledgling birds, baby deer, & rabbits by removing them from the wild is unnecessary & reduces their chances of survival.

If you find a baby squirrel or cottontail on the ground with its eyes closed or it cannot move, it is too young to be away from the mother. Contact a wildlife rehabilitator immediately.

DO NOT TRY TO RAISE IT YOURSELF.

COMMITMENT TO SAVING ANIMAL LIVES

Animal Services is committed to saving each animal that comes into our care. Over the last few years, we have improved our live release rate to 97%. We hold our standards high at keeping this percentage, and in doing so, we ask our rescue partners and citizens to help us pursue finding our animals forever homes.

DONATE

Every year, we get over a hundred injured and sick animals that need our help. For us to help them, we use our donated medical fund to give them the proper care and treatment they need. The only way for us to provide this needed medical care is through our generous financial donors. Every penny donated is sent to our medical fund. Please help us continue this much needed medical care for our animals by donating. Even if you cannot donate, it is a huge help to share posts on social media.
